

Council on Postsecondary Education
January 16, 2009

National Trends in Veterinary Medicine

Several months ago Chair Turner and Interim President Crofts had the opportunity to meet with Dr. James O. Cook, a practicing veterinarian in Lebanon, Kentucky, and the current president of the American Veterinary Medical Association. The conversation produced revealing information about the current status of the veterinary profession in Kentucky and the nation and the need for more vets in the future. Dr. Cook will join the Council at the meeting on January 16 to present this information.

Food Animal Concentration per Food Animal Veterinarian

